Barnyard Golf At County Picnic

Gardiner Team Wants to Win Again This Year and Thereby Permanently Hold Silver Cup—Say They Had "Stage Fright" Past Two Years—"Seasoned Material" May Meet Surprises.

County fairs and county picnics may have their horseshoe pitching contests, but the contest to be staged at the Ulster county picnic this year is to be a "ringer" from start to finish. Presidential campaigns, world series, and rural school meetings are tame affairs in comparison.

This horse shoe pitching tournament dates back to a rivalry started in 1922 by the Chamber of Commerce of Kingston offering a prize of a beautiful silver cup to the team winning the championship three consecutive years. The team from the community of Gardiner has for two years floated winning shoes to the peg. Men and women of Ulster county must band it to those boys from Gardiner. In the face of the fastest competition in the land, standing up in one tough battle after another, they have been too good to be defeated. Recent reports would indicate the Gardiner team has not been idle all summer although the rumor of practicing far into the night at radiotele pegs is strongly denied by Manager Joe Devo. "Joe" says, "Never mind the rumors; our boys had a touch of stage fright in past contests, but this year may be considered seasoned material."

Needless to say Secretary Coe of the Chamber of Commerce is very much prejudiced against the sharpshooters from Gardiner. Mr. Coe feels the boys are not at all diplomatic or in sympathy with the future success of the tournament. The idea of a team deliberately starting forth to cop the trophy in the shortest possible time may cause exceedingly hard feeling throughout the city and county and even necessitate the donation of another prize for next year.

Farm Bureau President Millard Davis, while a strong backer of last year's runner up, nevertheless refuses to take a stand with Secretary Coe in this matter. President Davis states that the Gardiner team having accepted the heavy responsibility of representing their community, should and must "over their dead bodies" pitch every shoe to win.

This is a terrible state of affairs, and just goes to prove that farmers cannot get together any more without having a little game of Barnyard Golf, and so it will be at the picnic on the 28th.

PATOKA MAY BECOME SEA GARAGE FOR SHENANDOAH

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Newport, R. I., Aug. 9.—The U. S. S. Patoka, with the great dirigible Shenandoah tugging at its mooring, mast, was striving today to prove itself worthy to be the big airship's permanent sea anchorage.

The Shenandoah will remain shipped to the mast for three days and three nights. It was anchored there last night. If the Patoka proves strong enough it will be sea garage for the Shenandoah when it takes part in the fleet maneuvers. Not alone is the Patoka being tested, the effect of the mooring on the dirigible's duraluminum frame also is to be observed.

Greenland Ice Stalls Flyers

Globe Girdling Army Aviators Face Serious Problems in Starting on Next Lap of Flight—Ice Fields Overlooked by Route Planners.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
On board U. S. Cruiser Richmond, off Reykjavik, Iceland, Aug. 9.—(By wire)—America's globe girdling aviators, now engaged in watchful waiting, began to lose hope today that they would be able to continue an unbroken flight homeward, because of huge ice fields off the Greenland coast, but they are not yet ready to give up.

A definite decision will be taken within the next few days. Within a week or ten days new ice added to the old would make a flight to the Greenland coast impossible.

A conference of army and navy officials on board the Richmond it was decided that it would be impracticable to try to land in the sea off the Greenland coast, retreating their airplanes from an American cruiser.

Lieut. Lowell Smith and Lieut. Erik Nelson, the only two pilots left of the original four who started on the 'round the world flight from Los Angeles in March, are keenly disappointed.

Present Route Impracticable.

One—it is impossible for numerous reasons to give name—admitted to the International News Service correspondent that the route of the present flight is impracticable.

Those who arranged the route overlooked the fact that, at the present season, there are huge ice fields off the Greenland coast. This made it impossible for the airman to alight at Angmagssalik, the first charted stopping place after leaving Iceland.

The flyer who criticized the present route said he believed the most feasible line of flight would have been the southern route over the Azores.

Face Two Alternatives.

It is generally understood that Lt. Smith, commander of the flight, faces one of two alternatives:

1. Elude for the Danish steamship Gertrud Rask to open a sea lane for landing off Angmagssalik, or

2. To attempt the almost impossible task of alighting on the sea and attempting fueling for the long jump to Indian Harbor.

The Gertrud Rask has reported her inability to break into the Angmagssalik Harbor. Officials declared that it would be a hopeless venture to try to refuel and overhaul the planes in the rough waters off the Greenland ice fields.

Lt. Schulze, on board the Danish steamship, reported that he would send no more radiograms unless there were radical changes in ice conditions. It is feared the Gertrud Rask will be unable to extricate herself from the ice jam for a forward push towards the Angmagssalik Harbor although no fears are felt for the vessel's ability to withdraw into open water seaward.

Look For New Landing.

A report on conditions has been made to Washington. A definite decision will be taken as early as possible.

The airman have completed approximately three-fourths of their journey. They have between six thousand and seven thousand miles to go. If they could get to Greenland and Labrador the balance of the trip would be plain sailing.

The cruiser Raleigh, which left Reykjavik early Friday, was to spend today inspecting the southeastern coast of Greenland in hope of finding a new landing place.

May Fly to Cape Farewell.

Washington, Aug. 9.—A 750 mile hop from Iceland to Cape Farewell at southern tip of Greenland was looked upon today by air service officials here as the best course to be taken by the American "round-the-world" flyers.

Reports received from Lt. Lowell Smith, commanding the flight, indicated that it will be virtually impossible to either establish a base at Angmagssalik because of the ice or to refuel the airplanes at sea.

Officials here believe Cape Farewell easily within cruising distance of Reykjavik.

To further safeguard the flight from Reykjavik to Cape Farewell, it was suggested here that a floating base could be established half way between these two points, so that a landing at sea would be possible should trouble develop. Cape Farewell, according to reports received here, is free from ice, while the rest of the Greenland coast is surrounded by a floe varying from 15 to 100 miles in width.

Sports Duds Are of Winsome Type

Various Models Are Designed for Both Country and City Wear.

Sports and country pleasures are so much a part of the modern woman's life that with the turn of each season she pays quite as much attention to informal clothes for country wear as to the more conservative costumes which she dons for town.

So lovely are the new sports clothes, observes a fashion writer in the Kansas City Star, that it is a bit difficult to restrain oneself from wearing them at inappropriate occasions. Happily there are certain models that are not out of place against a city background, but there are others quite different, marked "for country only."

Since feminine fancy leans toward flannel, the smart flannel one-piece dress with green and white striped silk blouse, will appeal to many women.

A clever little sports suit is a most attractive argument of the vogue for combining a coat of plain material with a patterned skirt. For its development a soft homespun is chosen in a rich shade of rose henna. The wrap-around skirt, also of homespun, has wide woven stripes of gray. This band of gray appeared in sleeve bands and on the pocket.

There seems to be a special affinity between lace and chiffon, so it is not surprising to find these materials successfully combined in a number of new frocks for summer wear. And in spite of earlier prophecies, printed chiffon and georgette play a more important part in summer fashions than was indicated a few weeks ago.

They are exceptionally lovely with designs ranging from single large flower motifs to massed patterns in which several colors are blended in a most subtle fashion. The latest development in the use of printed chiffon is an afternoon frock with a cape of the same material. These have been brought out very recently and have achieved an almost instantaneous success. One of the smartest models consists of a frock of black georgette printed with large flowers in a brilliant shade of blue. The dress is laid in tiny plaits from neck to hem and there is a narrow sash of the material itself. A little collar of hand-embroidered cream net and real valen-tines lace softens the oval neckline. With this is worn a cape of the material bordered with a wide band of black and cleverly draped so that the ends fall in irregular points.

The fashion of having the wrap match the costume is also shown. In this instance the dress is of pale beige georgette with lace dyed the same tone. At the waistline is a velvet flower in one of the new shades that is neither pink, rose nor mauve, but reflects a little of each of these colors. The cape is made of two "deep" shades of lace attached to a wide folded band of georgette tucked at each end.

Scarves Promise to Be Here Through Season

It looks as though women will be tied by the throat until they are dead. Or, until the scarf is dead. Scarves are as individual as tooth brushes, it would seem. Every frock, suit or wrap must have a scarf of its very own. Sizes range from small bobbed width to four-inch widths. And colors are rampant. "By our scarves ye shall know us," declare the younger misses as they drape gaudy plaid homespun about their slender throats. Older women prefer the scarf that is an accompaniment to the gown, being of the same shade and attached to the gown rather than the separate, blatant effects. And for the really elderly lady there are some lovely shawl-scarves of soft-plaited chiffon that are adorable. Some of these are made in pinfold effect, with tiny ruffles of plaid chiffon. These come in black, smoky and cream shades.

I bought a pattern at your competitor's and they claimed that you didn't have anything like it, and I just wanted to make sure."

One Dreadful Moment in Kate Wiggin's Life

In 1897 Kate Douglas Wiggin was presented at Holyrood palace. She describes what happened in "My Garden of Memory."

"I watched the curtsies carefully to see how those 'to the manner born' carried themselves, and as I neared the lord high commissioner I noted one young lady, virtuous, I am sure, for she was extremely ugly, who allowed a long, bony foot and ankle to appear as she swept aside her train.

"I glanced down to enjoy the effect of my own white satin shoes with crystal buckles, when lo! I beheld large, black, bedroom slippers on my feet!"

"No words can describe my confusion! I could easily have fainted, but an instant's thought showed me that I should make a scene at court, and when borne out by Lord Kinnear my shoes would attract immediate attention, probably fall off and be handed to him by the purse-bearer, or a titled aide-de-camp. I summoned all my courage and, when the awful moment came, made the deepest and most distinguished of curtsies with one end alone in view, that of concealing my feet."

She was obliged to remain in her bedroom slippers for the remainder of the proceedings.

"ANGEL FACED" "DICKIE" LOEB AND HIS TEDDY BEAR.

"Dickie" Loeb and his TEDDY BEAR.

These are childhood pictures of "Angel Faced" "Dickie" Loeb, one of the youthful slayers of Robert Franks, in Chicago, and the now famous "Teddy Bear," which alienists declare the child took to bed with him and to which he talked in his famous "phantasy" dreams. These pictures, such as might have been taken of any American youth, are used by the alienists to bear out their theory that the murderer, as a child, played himself as a great bandit and criminal.

To Make Hammers Last

If you have a hammer the head of which keeps flying off, sandpaper the handle, replace the head, drive in wedges in the usual "H" form, and then boil the hammer slowly in linseed oil for about three hours. Treated in this way a hammer should last a lifetime without trouble of any sort, says Popular Science Monthly.

Origin of Much Slang

In the sixteenth century slang was called "Pedlar's French," and everybody has heard a cash register called a "Jew's piano." The fur trade has many aliases of this kind, like "bunny seal," "marsh squirrel," and "Alaskan sable," all of which are camouflage names for substitutes for the real article.—London Answers.

Wives Beat Husbands

Wives may whip faithless husbands and the husbands mustn't complain, according to a recent decision of the Austrian Supreme court. When a woman beats her wayward spouse, the court held, such a beating is "out the natural reaction to his conduct."

Waves and Currents

The difference between a wave and a current is that a current is a stream of water moving in the sea, while a wave is merely a movement on the surface. The water itself does not advance with the wave (until it breaks), but the water of the current actually travels.

Fought Printing Press

To be a scribe during the Renaissance period—that is the period of revival of art which started in Italy during the fourteenth century—was to hold a very profitable position. The Renaissance movement gave rise to a great demand for "scribes" to make copies of the poets and philosophers whose work, after centuries of neglect, had once more come into its own. These scribes for some time commanded quite high prices for their work, and, even after the printing press had been introduced, continued to put up a brave fight against that "soulless machine." In this they were encouraged by some of the great nobles of the time. The duke of Urbino, for instance, who kept 40 scribes employed in copying parchments, was accustomed to say that he would be "ashamed to have a printed book in his library."

Machine Changes Money

Mechanical slot machines for changing money have been adopted by a New York street car company. The machines will take the places of over 1,200 employees engaged at the change booths at the entrances to the subway. The inventor of the machine, James S. Doyle, who is also assistant general manager of the firm, declares that the machines can change the larger coins quicker than human hands. The device changes only dimes, quarters and half dollars. A unique part of the machine is the counterfeit detector. Bogus coins are held and no change drops into the receptacle.—Exchange.

KINGSTON, N. Y., AUG. 9, 1924.

Doubtless more American women will be seen with little "sport canes" now that Queen Mary is reported as carrying "a long white stick that comes out beautifully in a snapshot."

The news comes from Paris that after the American advertisers and lawyers had dined at the Elysee the caretaker of the palace found that 47 spoons were missing. Has the "souvenir" grabbing mania really gone as far as that?

The third party's manager thinks that thousands in the two major parties who can't stand for the candidate of either will vote for LaFollette, but he will know more about this after the count of the votes of those who can't "stand for" LaFollette.

Ku Klux rampaging in Massachusetts causes Governor Cox to declare that in view of "a sufficiently difficult problem to insure our future prosperity, we cannot tolerate displays of hatred, bitterness and prejudice." A good deal more than material prosperity is involved.

UNJUST TO "KIDNAPPED."

One of the most surprising features of the Leopold-Loeb murder trial to date was the condemnatory reference of the attorney for the State to "Kidnapped," Robert Louis Stevenson's well known romance. "Mr. Crowe offered the volume, 'Kidnapped,' by Robert Louis Stevenson, as an exhibit. 'Do you wish to read it?' asked Mr. Darrow. 'It did not make the same impression on me as on some others, thank heaven,' said Mr. Crowe." The attorney for the State seemed to wish to imply not only that he disapproved of this fine story of the eighteenth century but that it could have had a depraving influence on Leopold. Of course, nothing could be more absurd. If all of Leopold's mental pabulum had been as harmless as "Kidnapped," his mind might have been considerably less "twisted" and he might now be much less scandalously notorious.

The book could have been chosen as an exhibit only because of its title. Its contents could not offend even the ultra-moralist. Its title results merely from the fact that its young Scotch hero, heir to an estate, is carried off, at the instigation of a rascally uncle, in a foreign-bound brig which is wrecked on the Ross of Mull, after which the hero makes his way on foot across Scotland, meets many adventures and innocently involves himself in political intrigues. There are few romances less likely to harm young readers, and partly for this reason it is much used in school and college literary courses. "Kidnapped" is wholesome reading for both young and old, and Mr. Crowe merely convicted himself of lack of knowledge on the subject when he ventured to intimate the contrary.

AN OLD ISSUE.

It has been charged that LaFollette evades the issues of the hour that might breed conflict among and divide his followers. Somewhat of confirmation of this may be found in his restatement of his chief issue in an article in the New York Times, as follows: "The investigations and disclosures have opened the eyes of the American people to the one supreme issue—the control of government by private monopoly. The specific proposals of the Progressives are constructive measures advanced to meet the supreme issue of the 1924 campaign—to break the power of private monopoly and restore government to the people."

Both the tone and substance of this are strikingly similar to the Bryan platform of 16 years ago, which read: "The various investigations have traced graft and political corruption to the representatives of predatory wealth and laid bare the unscrupulous methods by which they have debauched elections and preyed upon a defenseless public. Shall the people rule? Is the overshadowing issue."

Like Mr. Bryan in 1908, Mr. LaFollette would now "make it impossible for private monopoly to exist."

but the issue is an old one. Obviously Mr. LaFollette would be more up to date if he recalled the domination of big and too often corrupt business in government circles, condemned secret political societies, favored means of preserving the world's peace, etc. etc.

THE GOODLY SUN.

I often wonder if you realize what sunshine means to your life and health.

That the rays of the sun are beneficial to the human body is so clearly recognized now, that there are in many hospitals forms of treatment—light treatment it is called—where the beneficial rays of the sun are produced artificially.

Now some splendid results are obtained, and where there are causes that interfere with the securing of the sun's rays direct, as may naturally happen, this is all right.

But men investigating this subject of light therapy, as it is called, say that nothing produced by man has been found to be as effective as the actual rays of the sun. As I mentioned in a former article, acientists have found that the actual quality and quantity of the blood improved as much as 25 per cent, in people who were removed from darkened rooms to those that were bathed in the bright sunshine. The sun should come direct, not through glass, as the glass excludes some of the beneficial rays.

It would appear that just as the cells of plants are alive and actually respond to different rays of light from the sun, so do certain cells in the human body.

The actual pigment in the skin would appear to so change the reflecting surface that beneficial rays are absorbed and others refused admittance.

This is indeed interesting and important, when we remember what scientists tell us, that sunlight actually penetrates the human body to a depth of ten inches.

Just think of that. The wonderfully powerful rays—beneficial rays—of the sun penetrating that body of yours to a depth of ten inches. It is worth thinking about.

And then the natural companion of the sun, fresh air, is right there to help along in the good work.

We can't all live where the sun shines all the time.

While you are young you don't perhaps need the sun and air so much, because your tissues are strong and can look after you.

But when you get a bit older, and need any and all influences to keep you in good condition, then remember that the sun's rays for a little while every day, are worth a lot to that body of yours.

Day by Day at the Boy Scout Camp

Last Friday all boys at camp went on their weekly hike and the thing happened that everyone tries to avoid, that is, there were about 16 disappointed parents just because they came to camp on a week day. Instead of Sunday, the day set aside for visitors. While mentioning the subject of parents, it might be said that the only sickness, if it can be called that (an upset stomach), has been caused by another breach of rules, viz: by parents bringing food stuff and candies to their sons.

Parents expect their sons to live up to the rules of the camp, but it is suggested that they set them an example and do their part.

Here are the rules:

1. No food or sweets unless it is a treat for the whole camp, such as watermelon, ice cream, etc., to be eaten at meal time.

2. Unless it is on a special occasion when invited, Sunday only is visitor's day, otherwise you take a chance of not seeing your son and then again if he is on duty, under no circumstances will he be excused.

On Saturday was held the big Camp Fire and the boys put over a very fine show, it being Indian Night. About 50 visitors were present and at their request this Camp Fire is to be repeated on a much larger scale.

Sunday was visitors' day with a vengeance as the little island on which the boys are camping was well dotted by mothers, fathers, grandparents and friends. All were satisfied with the camp and many very complimentary remarks were heard.

There is not a homesick boy to go back, because everybody at camp is kept too busy to bother about being homesick.

Monday opened the second week with 24 boys, just a few more than the previous week. It also opened the bombardment of requests for examinations in Scout tests, which continued Tuesday and Wednesday with a Camp Fire each night when the boys got together with Chief Manahoe and practiced for the big Indian Pageant held on American Indian Day at the camp, Friday evening, August 8th.

Since camp opened it has been "Hey, skinny" or "Come on fat, let's go" on our Scout tests.

Which have kept all leaders on the jump keeping up with the boys, and if the desire of the Ulster County Scouts continues along this line, and there is no reason to believe it will not, the efficiency of Scouting in the county is going to take a long stride forward.

Here is the record to date, Scouts who have passed second class requirements:

Seaman Jacobs, Troop 1, Kingston. Theo. Amell, Troop 4, Kingston. William Dugan, Troop 4, Kingston. Milton Gregory, Troop 2, New Paltz.

A. Jansen, Troop 2, New Paltz. Russell Elliott, Troop 1, New Paltz. Walter Kenney, Troop 1, New Paltz. E. Baldwin, Troop 1, New Paltz. C. Seward, Jr., Troop 1, New Paltz.

And eight others have from one to two other tests to pass before they reach the second class rank.

Scouts who have passed first class requirements:

Ralph Simmons, Troop 4, Saugerties. Milton Gregory, Troop 2, New Paltz. Edwin Baldwin, Troop 1, New Paltz. Clinton Seward, Jr., Troop 1, New Paltz.

And nine others who have but from one to four other tests to pass before they reach the first class rank.

Possibly one of the most active departments of the camp is the passing of the merit badge tests as already 32 merit badge examinations have been passed by seven boys, one of whom is now a Life and Star Scout (Elmer Fisher of Troop 1, Highland).

Following is the list of Merit Badge Scouts:

Elmer Fisher, Troop 1, Highland, having passed the following: Pathfinding, Civics, Public Health, Personal Health, Swimming, Life Saving, Athletics, First Aid and Auto-mobiling.

Egbert Van Wagner, Troop 1, Highland, passed the following: Pathfinding, Public Health and Swimming.

Stockholm Baldwin, Troop 1, Highland, passed the following: Public Health and swimming.

Ralph Simmons, Troop 4, Saugerties, passed the following: Swimming and life saving.

Clinton Seward, Jr., Troop 1, New Paltz, passed the following: Swimming, life saving and fireman's hat.

Milton Gregory, Troop 2, New Paltz, passed the following: Swimming, life saving, personal health, safety, first, electricity, fireman's hat, first aid to animals, public health.

Considering that to date five boys have been taught and have passed the life saving test along with at least 10 boys being taught to swim and 12 more being taught to be more proficient in swimming, it will be seen that this department of camp life has been more than busy. The swimming has been in charge of Eagle Scout A. Johnson, who himself is an American Red Cross life saver.

Holding examinations is not the only activity in camp—far from it. There are the regular games, rest hour, boating, swimming, fishing, hikes and treasure hunts. A New Paltz scout took the prize in the treasure hunt during the past week. It was a very fine floating dial compass in a leather case, won by Clinton Seward of Troop 1, New Paltz.

It will be very helpful to scoutmasters to see to it that at least three or four of their boys get to camp this year as there is nothing more helpful to a scoutmaster or troop than to have a scout who has had camping experience and has made good as a scout by advancing in his scout work.

WHITE PAINTINGS ON EXHIBITION AT WOODSTOCK.

During the coming week, beginning Monday, August 11, and closing Sunday, the 17th, W. C. L. White of St. Albans, Long Island, New York city, will show a number of his paintings at the League Studio Hall in Woodstock. A cordial invitation is extended to Kingston folk to see them. The present exhibition is the first individual show that Mr. White has held at Woodstock, although at other times his work has been shown with groups of artists. The pictures in this exhibition are painted in water color; but Mr. White works in oil also.

The series of small pictures shown are examples of a somewhat new technique in the brilliant medium. The work is not confined merely to representative portrayals of things, but persistently enters the subjective realm, dealing with the spiritual, imaginative and symbolic. The use of the small nude and draped figures in the brilliant backgrounds make a charming and lively setting for an appealing subject.

The series of larger pictures is almost entirely confined to the problem of moonlight, the mystical charm of which is aptly expressed in various color schemes, green, blue, gray, violet, etc., in high and low keys. Old houses are an especial attraction, many of the recent works being devoted to the architecture of the Colonial period, with its grace, stability and simplicity.

Mr. White is a graduate of Pratt Institute and is a Master of Arts from Columbia. He is president of the Brooklyn Society of Artists and a member of the Philadelphia Art Club, National Arts Club of New York city, Brooklyn Water Color Club. He exhibits at many of the large exhibitions in the east, including the New York Water Color Club and American Water Color Society, Toledo Institute of Arts, Brooklyn Institute, Brooklyn Society of Artists, New Haven Water Color Club, also at Baltimore, Cincinnati and Washington.

Mr. White is an instructor in oil and water color painting at the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences. Although not a permanent resident of Woodstock, he spends the summers there and has recently built a studio cottage in the village.

JELLY TO THE QUEEN'S TASTE

Fruit for Jelly Should Be Selected First of All for its Flavor, and Other Substances Added Which Will Make it "Jelly"—Boil the Fruit a Little at a Time With a Small Amount of Water in Order to Extract the Highest Amount of Flavor.

The bride's first attempt at jelly-making sometimes causes her to suspect that there are more things which can go wrong in this than in any other type of food conservation.

"It will not jelly!"
"It cys like leather!"
"You cannot see through it!"
These are some of the complaints which every housewife, if she has not contributed to the chorus, has at least heard a number of times.

What is a Perfect Jelly?
To attain perfection, it is necessary to know first of all the measure by which to judge the product.

The perfect jelly is clear, transparent, and beautifully colored. When taken from its mold it quivers slightly, yet keeps its shape even when cut with a spoon and transferred to the individual plate.

A jelly which is runny, gummy, sticky, or tough is most uninteresting. Even a delicious flavor does not make up for poor texture and consistency, and in selecting jelly for special occasions the housewife will pay over the ones which will add to the appearance of her table. Jelly must please the eye as well as the palate.

Select Your Fruit Carefully.

Although there are many things to keep in mind in jelly making, the whole process may be reduced to a few simple rules. As in the time-honored rule for cooking the rabbit, first, "catch your rabbit." As applied to jelly making, first select your fruit. You may select one kind only, or you may combine different fruits to obtain the flavor and consistency which you desire. Although not all fruit juices will "jelly," many of the non-jellying fruits that have delicious flavor may be made to jelly by combination with those which will or by adding the substance which they lack.

What is a Jellying Fruit?

To make good jelly a fruit must contain acid, which makes it slightly sour, and a substance called pectin. It is the pectin which hardens the jelly, but no matter how much pectin is present it will not solidify unless there is some acid present with it. Therefore slightly sour or under ripe fruits are selected for the perfect jelly.

The housewife may make a very simple test to determine if her fruit contains enough pectin for jelly making.

Place one tablespoon of hot juice in a small glass tumbler and cover with one tablespoon of denatured alcohol. Allow it to cool. If a gelatinous mass collects on the surface of the mixture pectin is present. If there are only jelly-like specks scattered through it, the juice is lacking in pectin and will not make jelly unless pectin is added to it. A good pectin test shows 1-3 to 1-2 the mixture of alcohol and fruit juice change into the jelly-like form. This test is simple, easy to make, and inexpensive, and may be the means of turning a possible failure into success. Be sure that you do not taste the materials which you have used in this test, nor put them back into the fruit kettle, as denatured alcohol is poisonous.

Test the fruit for acid.

The simplest way to test for acid is to taste the juice. It should be slightly sour, or about as tart as a sour apple. If the fruit is not naturally tart cooked crabapple, green grape, or rhubarb juice or uncooked lemon juice may be added to make the juice sufficiently tart. Interesting results in flavor may be obtained by such combinations.

Fruits strong in both acid and pectin. Currants, crabapples, blueberries, blackberries, half ripe grapes, raspberries. These fruits when not overripe are ideally adapted to jelly-making.

Fruits which have sufficient pectin but need acid. Quinces, pears, peaches, ripe plums, sweet apples.

Fruits which have acid but need pectin. Cherries, strawberries, rhubarb.

Pectin may be made from apples.

Remove the blossom ends and all blemishes, but do not remove the skins nor cores. Cut in small pieces. To one quart of apples add the juice of one lemon and enough cold water to come well up around the fruit. Cook the mixture slowly, covered, for about 45 minutes. Strain through a jelly bag without pressing. Boil the extracted juice uncovered for five minutes. Test with denatured alcohol for pectin. Add enough of this apple juice to the other fruit juice you are using so that the two combined will give a good pectin test.

With these two corrections for acid and pectin you may be sure that you have a juice that will make jelly before you start to boil it down.

Extracting the Juice from the Fruit.

Wash the fruit. Stem, if necessary, and remove the blemishes but do not remove the seeds, skins, or cores except in quinces. Cut into convenient sized pieces. Cook soft fruits, such as berries, with one cup of cold water to four quarts of fruit in a covered preserving kettle. Granite, iron and enameled ware make excellent preserving kettles. Less juicy fruits require more water. As the fruit comes slowly to the boiling point mash and crush it with a wooden spoon or masher. This gives a highly concentrated juice and requires a shorter period of boiling with the sugar.

Strain without squeezing through a jelly bag wrung out of hot water. The juice obtained is called the first extraction. Return the pulp left in the bag to the kettle, cover with cold water and bring again to the boiling point. Strain this juice and you have the second extraction. It is well now to test for pectin. If the second extraction shows a good pectin test it is safe to boil up the pulp again, testing after each boiling, until you get a weak pectin test. With each repetition of boiling the flavor becomes less distinctive, but the combined result of the several extractions is excellent and insures more jelly from your fruit than one extraction will give you. The first extraction may be handled separately. If desired, but it is usually more satisfactory to put all of the extractions together and to have a quantity of uniform jelly rather than a first and second grade.

The addition of sugar.

The pectin test is also important in determining the amount of sugar to be used. A good jellying juice will jelly without any sugar, but the product will be tough, coarse, and poorly flavored. On the other hand, too much sugar makes the jelly like a sticky syrup and no amount of cooking will cause it to jelly. The right amount depends upon the amount of pectin which the fruit contains, hence the pectin test is again important.

Boiling Down the Juice.

First measure the juice and determine how much sugar is needed. Boil down the juice uncovered as rapidly as possible over an open gas flame. Remove the scum that rises to the top. At the same time heat the sugar dry, stirring so that it will not melt. When the juice has slightly thickened add the sugar hot and continue boiling vigorously until when lifted on a wooden spoon it "sheets" off the whole edge of the spoon, rather than dropping in small globules.

Provided that they are equally well refined, beet or cane sugar are equally well adapted to jelly-making. There is just as much difference between the different grades of cane sugar as there is between beet and cane sugar.

An excellent practice is to can the fruit juice or the apple pectin in the fruit season and to make your jelly in the winter as needed. This saves some time in the busy season and

GIVE THE DOG A TREAT

Turn the Electric Fan on Him and Watch Him Register Pleasure.

On stifling hot days, when your dog seems to be suffering intensely from the heat and is panting so hard that he can scarcely catch his breath, give him a treat. Place your electric fan on a table and adjust it so that its breeze will blow toward the floor. Then watch Rover settle down "delighted" with the cooling breeze.

Do this once, and the chances are pretty good that your dog, if he is as bright as most dogs, will search out the electric fan the very next hot spell.

House cats, too, are partial to the breeze of an electric fan in very hot weather. One old Thomas cat has developed such a fondness for these cooling breezes that on warm days, daylight hours being a terrible bore as far as cats are concerned anyway, he sleeps, stretched out as long as possible, in the path of the breeze of his mistress's electric fan from directly after breakfast until nearly supper time in the evening. In fact, if his catship is disturbed, his every movement distinctly registers a combination of injured feelings and supreme contempt for the person who forced him to leave the enchanted region of the electric fan's breezes.

ARE YOU GETTING WHAT YOU BARGAINED FOR FROM YOUR ELECTRIC HOUSEHOLD TOOLS?

Too Many Women Are Buying In Haste to Regret at Leisure.

Comfort and convenience in a home are not attained simply by possession of proper equipment and tools, but rather by adding proper application. This, after all, is the real short-cut in accomplishing household tasks.

It is surprisingly how many use electrical appliances, such as fans, sewing machines, cleaners and the like can be put to if one will experiment and follow out suggestions made by those who sell them. Women are too apt to decide to purchase an electrical appliance and straightway buy it as though they were ordering a particular brand of canned goods.

Much can be gleaned from an appliance salesman's arguments and therefore it is wise, even though you have made up your mind to purchase, to listen to everything he can tell you. Many people discount all sales arguments as mere puffs, but usually they are the product of much experimentation on his own or the manufacturer's part and it is well to give such things as he suggests a thorough trial before definitely condemning them.

To illustrate—an acquaintance decided to purchase an electric fan. She had just so much to spend and when she found a fan within her means she simply ordered it. The fact is she had it for nearly a year and a half before she discovered that it would dry dishes, laundry, wet floors, fresh paint or varnish, as well as ventilate her kitchen and prevent cooking odors from spreading throughout the entire house, and do any number of other things. For nearly eighteen months, therefore, this woman was not getting all the service she should have had from her fan.

Another example of poor buying is often shown in the purchase of an electric sewing machine. The purchaser waits until the last minute to buy, then does not stop to have it properly demonstrated nor to learn to use any of the many valuable attachments which would save her many hours of tedious work.

Likewise there is many an electric cleaner that is being used only for cleaning rugs and carpets while its real worth is never discovered because the attachments, which took years to develop, are ignored and any ingenuity in its use is totally lacking.

has the further advantage of reducing the cost of your sugar, as the price of sugar is usually the highest at the height of the fruit season.

COOKING BY STORED HEAT OFFERS A SIMPLE SOLUTION OF SUMMER MEAL PREPARATION

"Dinner is Served" Without Worry or Overheating of the House.

The following is a menu particularly suitable for a summer-time party dinner. It will be very little trouble if the directions given below are followed. Nevertheless, it will win the appreciation of your guests because it is a very homey meal.

Iced Cantaloupe
Fried Chicken
Green String Beans
Lettuce and Tomato Salad
Cherry Pudding
Coffee

Buy a roasting chicken and have it cut into small pieces. Wash it and put it into a pot with no water, except that which adheres to it after washing, with two tablespoons of lard or butter and salt and pepper to taste. Heat the oven of your electric range or cooker for about five or seven minutes before putting in the chicken and keep the heat at "high" for 20 or 30 minutes, depending upon the size and age. Then switch off the electricity and let the chicken cook by stored heat for two hours. When it has finished cooking, remove it from the oven, dip each piece in beaten egg and cracker crumbs and fry in plenty of fat.

Green String Beans.
The strings must be removed and the beans broken or cut into small pieces, thoroughly washed, put into a small vessel and place in the electric oven to cook at the same time as the chicken. When finished cooking, drain them and season with salt, pepper and butter. Stir so that each piece is covered with butter before serving.

Steamed Rice.

The rice may also be cooked in the electric range oven together with the string beans and chicken, or it may be steamed in the double boiler over one of the heater units. If cooked in the oven only two or three tablespoons of water will be needed. Wash the rice before cooking and add sufficient salt.

Lettuce and Tomato Salad.

Separate a head of lettuce, washing each leaf carefully and wipe thoroughly with a clean tea towel. Then wrap it up in the same towel and put on ice so that it will be nice and crisp when you are ready to serve it. Skin the tomatoes, which process can be hastened by scalding them, then slice and ice them also.

Cherry Pudding.

Make a pastry with two cups of flour, one and a half cups of milk, two teaspoonsful of baking powder and one of salt. Roll this out to a thickness of about one-quarter of an inch and line a large buttered bowl, allowing yourself enough to cover the bowl. Then fill the bowl with pitted cherries, three-quarters cupful of sugar and a few drops of lemon juice. Cover with the remaining piece of dough and bake in the electric oven at "medium" heat for 55 minutes, or bake it at the same time as the other food, keeping the electricity on for only 30 or 35 minutes and leaving it in for about one hour and a half. This should be served with either whipped cream or hard sauce.

Chinese Cup.

Place in a large bowl one quart of strained tea and add four thinly sliced lemons, a bunch of crushed mint, a quart can of shredded pineapple, one quart of pitted oxbow cherries and a quart of hulled strawberries.

Sweeten with a pint of sugar and let stand on the ice for five or six hours to chill and ripen.

When ready to serve add one quart of ice water, two quarts of chilled ginger ale and two quarts of ice cream. Pour a block of ice placed in a punch bowl and add two thinly sliced oranges. This will serve twenty-five persons.

Heart's Variations

The heart has often been compared to the needle of the compass for its constancy; has it ever been so for its variations? Yet were any man to keep minutes of his feelings from youth to age, what a table of variations would they present—how numerous, how diverse, how strange!—Hare.

Gas Industry Starts Testing Laboratory

A nation-wide movement to protect the country's users of gas against poorly made and dangerous appliances has been begun by the American Gas Association, and a fund to establish a national appliance testing laboratory has been created.

The purpose of the laboratory will be to increase the efficiency of gas utilization, raise performance and construction standards of gas appliances and eliminate as far as possible the use of inferior, dangerous and inadequate apparatus.

It is said that every type of gas burning appliance on the market will be tested in the laboratory. If an appliance meets the required standards it will bear the laboratory's stamp of approval. Only appliances bearing this stamp will be sold by the gas companies, and they, in turn, will endeavor to see that all appliances sold to dealers have been similarly approved.

Miss Ginzburg In Beauty Test

Miss Sophie Ginzburg is leading Kingston Girls to take in Beauty
Contest at Stamford — Entries
Close Thursday Next.

Stamford-in-the-Catskills, Aug. 3.
—Miss Sophie Ginzburg of 46 Broadway, Kingston, is leading the young ladies of that city up to date in the beauty contest to choose
"Miss Catskill" at Resmore Casino swimming pool in Stamford, Saturday, August 16. Unless some other Kingston beauty registers her home in the contest before entries close,
Thursday, August 14, Miss Ginzburg will have the honor of representing "Miss Kingston" among the most beautiful girls in the entire Catskill mountain district.

Any other Kingston young lady between the ages of 16 and 35 is invited to enter the contest and send her picture, name and address before next Thursday to Alexander
Ott, Beauty Contest Director,
Churchill Hill, Stamford, N. Y.
"Some Kingston beauty stands just as good a chance of winning one of the fifteen prizes offered at Stamford as any other girl in the Catskill mountains," Director Ott explained yesterday. "If she wins the title of 'Miss Catskill' at Stamford she will be sent to Atlantic City for the National Beauty Contest, September 2-6, with all her expenses paid, as well as those of her chaperon. This is a distinct honor and it means a fortune in the future with the movies, physical culture activities, etc."

Miss Ginzburg has written that she will be ready to go to Stamford on the 16th unless some other Kingston girl is chosen as more beautiful by the committee of judges in charge.

AN AFTERMATH OF THE PARIS RACES.

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

Those versed in fashions never underestimate the importance of what is worn at the French races.
What women wear has become—and rightly enough—of greater interest than what model makers prepare. So for this reason this sketch was made at Les Hales, considered by many the smartest racing event of the year.

The dress is of biscuit-colored embroidered, banded with gold galloon, and one is at once struck with the shortness of the skirt and the length of the tunic, which ends in a circular flounce.

Short gloves and short sleeves have long ceased to be themselves an object of curiosity, but that they continue to be worn is something.
That novelty gloves have taken a firm hold on women is indicated by the fact that not only cut-out effects and inlays, as well as metal stitching, but hand-painting, is resorted to in decorating the newest models.

Generally speaking, the little cuff is the favorite of Paris, but women are reverting to a certain extent, to mousetail types. White gloves are worn rather more now than for some time, but the fact that many chic women match their nude and banana color hosiery with suede gloves has been widely heralded.

It is not likely that when the social season gets under way, women will be seen bare-armed at the opera and dances; indeed, the season promises to be rather a formal one,
with laces of the richest and rarest, brocades, furs, and velvets all in a happy jumble.

Hats, in any event, have less of a debonnaire look about them, and considerable more dignity, due to the high and rather elaborate trimmings.

FIND USE FOR EXTINGUISHING POSTS

It took Somerville, Mass., a long time to realize that the automobile had superseded the horse permanently but now that the fact has been realized a use has been found for the hitching posts of another day. The posts have been placed on concrete bases and are being used for traffic posts.

IN SELLING CAR
STICK TO TRUTH

Buyers of Used Machines
Are Wise Guys and Watch
Many Little Points.

(By ERWIN GREER, President Greer College of Automotive Engineering, Chicago.)
At last you have found a prospect who is actually "sold" on your used car. The demonstration has been perfect, the old boat has pulled the hills sweetly and chugged steadily along at five miles an hour. The prospect gets out to examine the tires. "Blah! You can't tell me that a car with only five thousand miles on its speedometer should have four different makes of tires on its wheels," he sneers. And your prospect is gone. It is your fault for not making that sale—your failure to remedy the car so that it will check absolutely with your sales talk. What you haven't taken into account is that the used-car buyer is a wise guy these days and that you've got to have a machine that satisfies his expert mechanical eye.

Important Questions.
Ask yourself the following questions, then check against the car you are to sell:

Do all four of the tires show a similar degree of wear? Are they the same make? Does the speedometer agree with them? Remember that the 5,000-mile gag on the speedometer is one of the oldest that is pulled. Be different and set yours at 10,000. Even better than this leave the speedometer "as is."

And if you repaint the car don't forget to replace all dented hub caps. Test the upholstery to determine whether or not the padding is out of place or that the springs are depressed, especially in the driver's seat. The expense to repair it is small and this is one of the places that the expert buyer inspects for wear.

Is the top in good condition? If not have it repaired. A sagging top ruins the lines of the finest machine. While doing this have all the broken side-curtain windows repaired.

Are the lights in good condition? Are there any broken lenses?

Make sure that the fenders are free from dents. Take them off yourself. Then the repairs won't be half as large as if the repair man did the job.

How about the doors? Do they open and close properly. Do they rattle? A few new rubbers and twists of a screwdriver will tighten them again.

Good Tools Kit Adds.

And then the tools. Don't strip a car just because you want to get rid of it. A good tool kit will add a better price to the car and ten to one you get back the price of the tools twenty times over. And now you are pretty well set.

Suppose you invite a friend, one who is not interested in the machine you are to sell and invite his criticism. Often he will find some highly important flaw that you have overlooked.

Now for the mechanical condition of the engine and chassis. It is essential, of course, that the engine be absolutely quiet. This entails a hundred things and you know best how to deal with them. In other words, the mechanical condition of the machine should be such that it will make a satisfactory demonstration under the most exacting conditions. And the storage battery will possibly need to be charged.

Consider these facts carefully and you will discover that you have eliminated most of the sales resistance supplied by the prospect.

High Speed Dries Tire,
Makes Blowout Easier

One of the most expert tire men in the country recently called the attention of motor car owners to the manner in which tire wear increases with speed. The faster a tire travels, the more heat it generates internally. Normal speed does not increase the internal heat to a dangerous degree, but excessive speed will not only raise the heat above the danger point, but may actually cause further vulcanization to take place. This heat not only dries out the friction gum between the piles of fabric but the very fabric itself, lowering the elasticity of a tire, decreasing its resiliency and weakening the tire so that it will blow out early.

Spare Tube Deserves
Precise Treatment

The man who parks his shoes on the piano and files his collars in the coal bin also throws his spare tubes carelessly into the tool box of his car, if he is consistent. And neither the piano nor the collars would suffer as much from such treatment.

Inner tubes are usually packed in waxed paper to preserve the elasticity and resiliency of the rubber. But this paper is no match for the sharp edges of tools that chafe against it with the jolting of the car. The tube, that is always ready for the roadside emergency is carefully wrapped in cloth or very heavy paper or is encased in an inexpensive tube bag.

Ready Means of Tracing
Troubles of Spark Plug

The device has several simple methods for testing the condition of the sparking plug. It consists of a T-shaped body of insulating material, into one end of which the high-tension wire is fixed. The high-tension current is led to a short spark gap made visible by a window in the body of the device, and then proceeds to the terminal which clamps to the head of the sparking plug.

Spark Plug Indicator.

In the central arm of the T there is a metal plunger with an insulated milled head. The guide of this is connected by means of a brass chain to a clip which is fastened round the body of the sparking plug. This device has much to recommend it as a ready means of tracing troubles.

Musical Warning Horns
Demanded by Parisians

Musical warning whistles for taxicabs and automobiles to replace the honking horns and shrill sirens now used are urged by a group of prominent Parisians who are trying to abolish harsh noises in the French capital.

Dr. M. Marage, leader of the movement, suggests that Paris follow the example set by M. Herriot as mayor of Lyons, where all the municipal service autos are equipped with a special trumpetlike horn which warns the pedestrians with a series of pleasant musical notes. All the cars play the same tune, consisting of a series of four notes selected by musical experts after exhaustive tests as the most pleasant for the human ear.

If this method is not adopted, M. Marage suggests that all Paris autos carry two horns—one with a shrill sound for the country and suburbs, and the other with a deep bass tone for the city.

Open Windshield Ruins
Complexion of Drivers

Woman automobile drivers frequently complain that driving "simply ruins the complexion," according to the proprietor of a local "beauty parlor." It is not the driving, nor the wind, nor the sun that ruins the complexion, according to the expert, but the fact that so many women insist upon driving with the upper panel of the windshield open.

"When a woman drives a car she is inclined to open the upper half of the shield for two reasons," she comments. "First she wants the breeze, and then sometimes the reflections in the glass bother her vision. But it is this very thing that ruins the skin of the face, for fine particles of road dust are driven by the direct wind into the pores."—Detroit Motor News.

Why Camel Is Valued

A camel should be given water every three or four days, but a healthy camel can go eight or ten days without water. A camel has been known to survive 10 days without water, but this is exceptional.

Paige Gives All This for $1895!

WHAT do you look for in the car you buy? Riding comfort, fine performance, smart appearance, long life! Now then—let's figure out just how Paige meets these demands. And let's see what others—costing more—have to offer.

First—comfort. Paige has 131-in. wheelbase. Few cars are longer and they cost far more—yes!—$200 to $1000 more for each extra inch! Why pay it?

Paige's rear springs are more than 5 feet long—4 snubbers. Greater spring suspension is not to be had. Ride over bumps with the Paige in unjolted comfort!

Now—let's talk about power. You want a car that will take hills in high where others stall or shift. You want to pull through hard going without dropping into second.

Throttle down to a 2 mile an hour crawl in high. You want great speed for emergencies. The big six cylinder 70 h.p. Paige motor lets you do all this—smoothly, silently. More cylinders would only complicate it. Paige's ample power means no overtaxing—hence long life.

What power do others offer? Many cars costing $400 to $1100 more than Paige have far less power! Their piston displacements are 260 cu. in. to 314 cu. in. Compare these with Paige's 331 cu. in.

Weight indicates staunchness. Several cars costing $2175—$2300—$2475—even $2685 show less weight than Paige's 3850 lbs. A stancher car at hundreds of dollars saving!

Think over these facts! Come in and let us show you the results in Paige's performance and comfort.

MOTORCYCLIST BURNED
AS HIS MACHINE SKIDS

The Poughkeepsie Eagle-News says:

Harold Tubbs, 26-year-old clerk of Highland, was rushed to Vassar Brothers Hospital Thursday evening with burns sustained when his motorcycle skidded on the New Paltz road. The hospital's ambulance crossed to Highland on the ferry, and brought Tubbs here. Early this morning it was announced he had suffered probable internal injuries.

Tubbs, it was learned, was passing the Nelson Van Nostrand place about 9:30 p. m. Suddenly his machine skidded for a distance of 100 feet. The motorcycle caught fire and Tubbs' legs, arms and face were burned.

First aid was administered at the Van Nostrand home, while word was being sent here for the ambulance.

MIGHT CAUSE QUAKE THAT WOULD DESTROY NEW YORK

Mad Search for Oil May Cause Radical Changes in This Planet, Says Scientist.

Philadelphia—"There is a very real danger that New York city may suffer from an earthquake one of these days. Unless the world gets over its mad search for oil there are going to be some radical changes on this planet."

These are some of the startling predictions made by Prof. David Todd of Amherst college, professor of astronomy, internationally known scientist and author of half a dozen books and innumerable articles. Professor Todd is spending the summer on the estate of F. M. Sharples, near West Chester.

New York city, he says, is as likely a site for the next earthquake as any in the United States. This is because of the geological formation of the land beneath it. Earthquakes almost invariably come at a point where two strata or layers beneath the surface of the ground come together. When terrific pressure comes on this point it is inevitable that it should crack.

According to Professor Todd, it has been ascertained that just such an underground joint lies beneath Manhattan island. The pressure which eventually will force this joint apart and cause an earthquake is caused by the thousands and thousands of tons which are being heaped onto the island in the shape of huge buildings and still huger foundations.

He predicts that when the earthquake finally comes the destruction which will follow will be far greater and more terrible than that which followed the Japanese upheaval of last summer.

Professor Todd is also pessimistic over the consequences of the "oil madness" which is gripping the world at the present time. "Did you ever see a driller strike oil?" he asked. "If you have you will get some idea of the tremendous pressure which is locked up in the ground beneath us. It is this pressure which holds the world in shape. And with countless hundreds of oil wells tapping this pressure in every part of the globe, what will be the result I dare not predict."

Salvaging of German Fleet at Scapa Flow Started

Scapa Flow—At Scapa Flow a serious commencement has been made with the salvage of the German fleet. One of the divers states that some of the sunken ships are covered with growths 20 feet long and record-sized barnacles and mussels. The divers found the Hindenburg, at one time the pride of the German navy, with engines and interior intact. Champagne bottles and glasses were found in the officers' quarters and bunks undisturbed. The Hindenburg lies in eleven fathoms of water and, if she proves seaworthy, she may be towed for dismantling to Queensborough. A curious fact is the entire absence of fish in Scapa Flow. Crabs and lobsters are as thick as trees in a forest, said a diver, but other kinds of fish must have been scared away.

RADIO

(Edited by G. Douglas Wardrop, Editor of Radio Merchandising)

Types of Loops Which Can Be Constructed at Small Cost.

By HARRY GEORGE

Admitting that static is a bugbear to radio, it knows no favorite type of set; it affects all, but engineers have designed circuits and methods of reception which at the present stage of development can be termed as highly satisfactory means.

One of the greatest steps along these lines is the development of the loop aerial. It is a well known fact that good summer reception can be obtained with the aid of a loop aerial and one or more stages of radio frequency. Even distant signals have been copied in the hottest summer months on certain semi-favorable nights.

But to get down to the point of our talk. It has been said that a loop will pick up but 1-10 the signal voltage that could be obtained with the use of an outdoor aerial. If this is so it is easily seen that we must increase or amplify this signal to such a value that it will operate a detector; the method of wiring up and operating a radio frequency amplifier has been published in detail many times, therefore it will not be given now. Our thought is the construction of the loop itself. In laboratories and work accomplished by the vast number of radio experimenters different types and sizes of loops have been used, ranging in size from small coils one inch in diameter, honey-comb coils and receiving coils of various tuners up to massive single-turn loops measuring 10 feet on a side.

Best Type of Loop.

Experiments proved that the best type of loop for use on the broadcast wave lengths measured about 8 1/2 feet on a side and consisted of but a single turn of No. 18 green and yellow single conductor lamp cord. This loop was tuned by means of a .0008 variable low loss condenser and the results accomplished by it fully equaled those obtained with an outdoor aerial measuring 75 feet long.

Owing to its awkward dimensions it was impractical for home use. There are, however, smaller and more convenient sizes to handle which will give very good results.

The illustrations will give the experimenter an idea of types of loops which can be constructed at a very small cost. Figure 1 shows the loop used in the Slesper Monotone receiver. The crosspieces measure 27 inches, or 18 1/2 inches on a side. It is wound with 10 turns of standard flexible loop wire spaced one-half inch apart, the outside turn measuring 18 inches. It is provided with a set of taps, which are connected to the 2d, 4th, 6th, 8th and 9th turns. This arrangement, which is found in no other loop, performs the unique duty of controlling the potential on the grid of the first tube, thereby eliminating the usual potentiometer. The switch does not vary the inductance of the loop. The frequency is only varied by the condenser, which is shunted across its terminals, the lower one of which is connected to the filament and the upper one to the grid of the first tube.

Other Kinds of Loops.

Another type of loop, of the pancake type, which will afford interesting food for thought is shown in Figure 3. This loop was experimented with by H. G. Silbersdorf of Jersey City, N. J., and has the added feature of being able to not only rotate on its axis but can be tipped to any desired angle as well. Experiments with the use of a resonance wave coil led up to the loop in its present form, and it was found to have certain defined advantages over the average loop. It seems to at least partly solve the great summer question of signal to static ratio. When tipped at certain angles the static is weaker and the signal stronger. The theory is as follows: If radio waves travel parallel to the surface of the earth and static disturbances travel in a more or less perpendicular path to it the adjustment of the pick-up coil can be so arranged to pick up most radio waves, which is at such an angle that it will pick up a minimum of static waves.

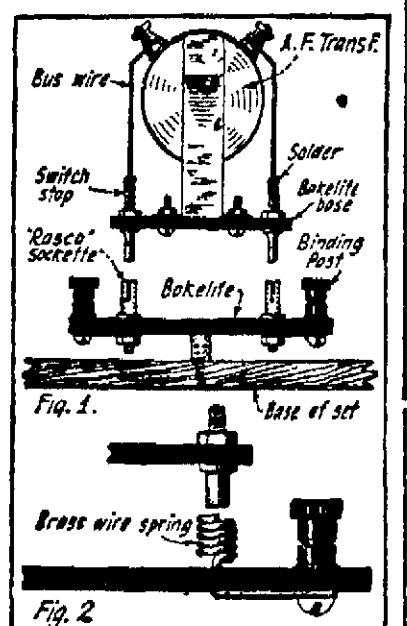

The crossarms of the loop measure 18 inches each and the outer framework pieces measure 18 1/2 inches each. Thirteen turns are made, which are spaced three-eighths of an inch apart. C-shaped brass angle pieces are fastened into the corners of the outer frame, which serve to support the inner crossarms. The entire loop is tuned by means of a .001 variable condenser.

Still another form of loop is shown in Figure 3. This is known as the box type and, while it requires more room to set up, is claimed by many engineers to be more efficient than the ordinary spiral or flat pancake loop. A good size to use for the broadcast waves measures four feet on the arms. The ends of which are provided with bakelite or other insulating material in the slots on which are wound 10 turns of loop wire, five on either side of the lower upright support. Like the other types, it is tuned with a variable condenser and is recommended highly for use with super-sensitive receiving instruments, owing to its large dimensions.—New York Evening World.

Removing Transformers

From One Set to Another

This article is a description of a method whereby the formerly immovable A. F. transformers in a receiving set can be moved from one set to another as quickly as a vacuum tube and without disturbing any wiring or loosening and tightening any nuts or binding posts. This arrangement makes the purchase of more than two or three transformers unnecessary, no matter how many different receiving sets the experimenter may use.

The scheme, as can be seen from the drawing, consists of mounting the transformers upon separate, identical bases of bakelite or formica on which four contacts made from switch stop pins are fastened. The contacts are wired to the terminals of the transformers. If different makes of transformers are used, be sure the G P B+ and F terminals are wired to corresponding contacts on the bases to prevent reversed connections as the transformers are moved from socket to socket.

The sockets consist of pieces of formica or bakelite cut slightly larger than the transformer bases. On each of these are fastened four binding posts and four "Rasco Sockettes" (small size). If the "Sockettes" cannot be obtained, cord tip jacks which will accommodate stop pins or the arrangement shown in Fig. 2 may be used.

To avoid placing the transformers in the sockets incorrectly, do not arrange the contacts in a square or rectangular formation, but place the primary contacts closer together than the secondary contacts.

This idea is also useful in making comparative tests between different transformers, and also the best position in the circuit for different radio transformers.

Do Not Shield Panel

In connecting up a receiver, whether it be a single-tube "blooper" or a six-tube super, always keep the high potential wires away from the panel. If a set is correctly wired in this respect it is not necessary to shield the panel. It is not good practice to shield a panel when not necessary, as the shield forms one plate of a condenser, with the wires that are not at ground potential as the other, and will result in broader tuning.

Buy Good Phones

The phones are one of the necessities of the radio set. If the phones are poor it will not be possible to receive long distance stations, because the weak current that flows through the telephone windings will not be strong enough to actuate a movement of the diaphragm. Be sure that the phones are of good make and avoid disappointment.

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; difficulties your lucky day, lucky jewel

OLGA

OLGA is one of the most interesting of feminine names. Her Russian ancestry, as well as her famous bearers and the sanctity which surrounds her, makes her worthy of more attention than she generally receives. The name comes originally from the Norse, and means "holy," but it first sprang to fame in Russia.

Olga was the name of the first Christian duchess in Russia. She was the godmother of Vladimir, the first grand duke to be baptized in the Christian church in 988. Olga appears in the "Monument of Faith," a sort of devotional prayer book, as one of the saints of the Russian calendar.

When the royal widow, Olga, came from Muscovy to seek instruction and baptism, she was called Helena, in honor of Empress Helena, mother of the founder of Constantinople. Olga is therefore sometimes believed to be a translation of Helena, but etymologists contend that this is a mistake founded on the fact that the royal widow and another royal saint were called by both names. Olga, according to an authoritative source, is the feminine of Oleg, the Russian form of Helgi, which the race of Rurik derived from their Norse ancestor.

Among the modern bearers of the name are included Grand Duchess Olga of Russia, sister of the late czar. His ill-fated daughter, the young grand duchess, was likewise called Olga.

Olga's talismanic stone is the diamond. It promises her victory in every endeavor, fearlessness and invulnerability. It is said to have the power to enhance the love of a husband for his wife. Saturday is Olga's lucky day and 6 her lucky number. The violet is her flower.

Telling Rattlesnake's Age

Win Health Beauty Prize

Mrs. George C. Bogert and Children Receive State Award.

Highest honors for the state of New York in the Lifebuoy Mother and Children Health Beauty Prize Contest were awarded today to Mrs. George C. Bogert and her three children of 450 Riverside Drive, New York city.

The Judges, Mrs. Oliver Harriman, National President, Camp Fire Girls; U. S. Senator Royal S. Copeland (former Health Commissioner of New York City) and Howard Chandler Christy, the artist, devoted weeks of continuous effort to selecting from many thousands of exquisite photographs the nine National and 49 State Prizes, totaling $10,000, awarded by the manufacturers of Lifebuoy Health Soap.

Each photograph was judged from three angles—health, beauty and motherhood. The contest was originated by Lever Bros. Co., makers of Lifebuoy Health Soap, to prove that health and beauty are really the same—that only radiant health can give a mother and children beauty.

Through data compiled from letters accompanying these thousands of photographs, this relation of health to beauty is proved conclusively.

The most attractive children were those in the very pink of bodily health, who have always been protected from the usual diseases of childhood.

This state has always prided itself on the beauty and charm of its women, and New York may well be happy in the success of Mrs. Bogert and her three darling youngsters, chosen as they are from the hundreds of beautiful mothers and children of New York who vied for first honors.

ROAD BUILDING

FOUR-WHEEL DRIVE AIDS ROAD SURFACE

When a man or a family gets used to eating pancakes for breakfast, it takes an extra effort and much advertising to make them believe that there is a breakfast food that is cheaper and better. It is the same with everything. Roads and automobiles are no exception.

We have our present style automobile driven by the two rear wheels. The two front wheels carry about the same load, many times there is more weight on the front wheels than the rear ones. And still the rear wheels are compelled to do the pulling for all four.

In traveling around the country on dirt or gravel roads you will notice the road surface is full of short little holes dug into the road by this pull on the wheels. Because the pull on the road surface with the present style drive is exactly equal to the pull on the tire surface, any dirt or gravel road will give way under such a pull or strain. This strain or pull on the road surface is entirely gone from the front wheels. If we used horses to pull the auto instead of an engine, we would do away with all this pull by the wheels on the road surface.

Now, it was never supposed that rolling a road did it any harm. Neither would rolling an auto over the road do much harm. By driving an auto over the road with all four wheels turning together we would be as near the rolling idea as possible. By turning all four wheels at the same time they simply act as rollers and do not dig into the road surface enough to pull it loose.

I claim that four-wheel drive will wear than pay for the extra cost in saving on tires alone, writes J. B. Ketchum of Illinois, in Hoards Dairyman. It would also save on gasoline; less horse power would be required. It is the big secret of good roads in this country. Until we get the auto perfect and a successful four-wheel drive, we will never be able to maintain any road system at a reasonable cost.

Our present automobile engineers are just about the same as the man that got used to the pancakes.

Highways and Railroads Need Billion Each Year

At a time when the railroads of America need at least $1,000,000,000 a year for their development, the public highways of the country are receiving that amount and more, says the Providence Journal.

In 1923 the sum of $1,250,000,000 was expended upon road improvement, while the total capital expenditure on railroads, including equipment, was only $750,000,000.

This means that we are starving our railroads and at the same time providing new means for their competitors, the motor cars and particularly the motor trucks, to flourish. The situation is unfair, because the trucks are permitted to operate without paying anything like their fair share of the upkeep of the modern highway surfaces of which they take advantage and on which they put a heavy tax of wear and tear.

Trails to Be Marked in Cascade Forest Reserve

Five hundred miles of government trails in the Cascade national forest will have been marked with sign posts every mile when installation of 300 that have just been received at the local warehouse of this forest is completed. The posts will be installed in May, according to officials of the forest service.

The posts will be sent to the McKenzie bridge, Oakridge and West Boundary districts of the forest. On the top portion of the posts will be printed the name of the trail and beneath will be an arrow pointing the direction of different objectives.

Drive Against Billboards

Massachusetts has begun a statewide drive against the billboards that line its highways. The state department of public works has been empowered to regulate billboard advertising by the process of licensing that industry. Violation of the new regulations is punishable by a fine of $100 for the first offense and $500 for the second.

Location of Best Towns

In traveling one cannot but note that the most prosperous towns are along the lines of good transportation, so good roads and good transportation help in the first element of the farmer. "The ability to make a comfortable living from the land."

Roads to Circle Earth

More than 3,000 miles of roads of all types were completed with federal aid during the year which ended June 30, 1923, according to a government report. This, added to the mileage completed previously, brought the total for finished projects up to 25,536 miles, or more than enough to circle the earth. The projects under construction at the close of the year amounted to 14,772 miles, and were estimated at 53 per cent complete.

Benefits of Frugality

If frugality were outlawed in the state, if our expenses were laid out rather in the unnecessary than the necessities of life, there might be fewer wants and even fewer pleasures, but certainly more happiness.—Goldsmith.

Manager Evers Chipper as Ever

Manager John Evers and Coach Ed Walsh of the Chicago White Sox. Evers recently underwent an operation for appendicitis at Troy, N. Y., but has fully recovered and is as chipper as ever.

DIAMOND PICK-UPS

"Uncle Wilbert" Robinson, of the Brooklyn Dodgers, was in line for congratulations on June 20, on the occasion of his sixtieth birthday.

H. S. Cuyler, recruit outfielder for the Pittsburgh Nationals, is showing himself to be a handy and capable man to have. Cuyler is batting around .333.

The New York Yankees, one of the best hitting clubs in the majors, rate Howard Ehmke of the Boston Red Sox as the most effective pitcher in the American league.

Lefty Barnes, former University of Illinois pitcher, has been given a contract by the White Sox. The chances are Evers will send him to a minor league team for experience.

W. A. Kelso, representing a group of chamber of commerce men of Galveston, has formally taken control of the Galveston team. The new ownership has the approval of President Roberts of the Texas league.

National league umpires say that if Pitcher Tony Kaufmann had a better disposition he would be twice as good a pitcher. According to the umpires, Kaufmann labors under the delusion that he throws nothing but strikes.

When the man with the scythe forced Bobby Wallace to hang up his spiked shoes the St. Louis fans thought they never would find a shortstop would could fill them. That was before Walter Gerber came along. Gerber can do everything the speedy Scot used to do and perhaps a little more.

Johnny Farrell's failure to crash into the British open golf championship is attributed to a flock of bolts which cropped out on his hands. It was almost impossible for Farrell to hold a club.

The Woman's National Golf and Tennis club of Westbrook, L. I., has been admitted to membership in the United States Golf association. This is the first woman's club to join the ranks of the U. S. G. A. on terms of parity with the men's club and with full voting privileges.

Two of the speediest lightweights in the game are Sid Terris of New York and Sammy Mandell of Chicago. Experts, however, are agreed that Mandell is the fastest fighter in the game.

Windsor Club Here Tomorrow

Sunday afternoon the Windsor baseball club of North Adams will be the attraction at the Fair Grounds opposing the Colonials. The Windsor club has been representing Hock Falls on Sundays, but because of poor support has decided not to continue during the rest of the season.

The Colonials have two wins over the North Adams team this season, winning a fourteen inning struggle here and beating Demers for the first time this season at North Adams. Hummer will probably do the hurrying for the local club.

Winner Must Meet Dave Shade

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Aug. 9.—Dave Shade, California welterweight, will meet the winner of the Walker-Leonard fight, under a ruling of the Boxing Commission. Leonard, Walker and Shade must post a bond of $10,000 each with the commission in the next few days.

The winner of the title fight on August 20 must take on Shade before the first of the year, the commission ruled, and cannot engage in other bouts in the meantime.

Chappies Pound Local Pitchers

Colonials' Battering Trip Ends With Defeat at Amsterdam by Johnson's Colored Stars—Three Local Pitchers Hit for 19 Innings.
It was the opposition instead of the Colonials that went on a batting rampage on Friday afternoon at Amsterdam and as a result Chappie Johnson's Stars scored a 15 to 5 win over the Kingston club after sending three Colonial pitchers for nineteen hits.

Hummer started for the Schrickmen and lasted two innings. Rube Forsythe then took up the burden and managed to last until the sixth inning. Harris, who had pitched the day before at North Adams, finished the game for the Colonials and was the only one of the three pitchers who managed to keep up with the Stars.

The Colonials found Cooper, who did the hurrying for the Amsterdam club, for twelve hits which would have been enough to win the game had the Colonial pitchers been in any kind of shape. Deegan and Raskin both came through with three hits, while Flynn and McCue both managed to get two apiece.

Ridgley led the batters on Chappie Johnson's club with four hits out of five times at bat to his credit while Ewing, the hard hitting catcher on the colored club, made one of the longest four base blows that Amsterdam fans have ever seen. Ewing's blow came in the fifth inning with the bases loaded and was responsible for Forsythe's hurried exit from the game.

In the first inning hits by Ridgley, Johnson, Ewing and Smith gave the Stars a two run lead. In the second inning Pierce, Perry and Cooper got to Hummer and as a result two more runs were chalked up in favor of the Stars. Hummer was taken out at this stage of the contest and Forsythe sent into the box.

In the Colonials' half of the fourth inning they managed to push one run across the plate but the Stars came back in their half of the same inning and scored four more. The fifth inning put an end to any hopes that the Colonials might have had for winning the contest when the colored players sent seven runs across the plate. The Colonials scored three runs in the sixth and one in the ninth.
